Who we are

Being told 'you have cancer' can affect so much more than your health – it can also affect your family, your job, even your ability to pay the bills. Having the right kind of information and support at the right time, is essential.

The Macmillan Cancer Information and Support Service at St Helens Hospital provides a confidential, drop-in service for anyone affected by cancer. This includes people who:

- require information about cancer
- have a cancer diagnosis
- have survived cancer
- are living with the consequences of a cancer diagnosis
- are looking to reduce the risks of cancer
- are a carer, relative, or friend of someone with cancer
- are healthcare professionals.

How we can help

Staffed by Macmillan Information and Support Specialists and trained volunteers, we are able to provide:

- literature on all aspects of living with cancer
- internet access to guide people to appropriate information resources
- opportunity to discuss treatments, side effects and other cancer related issues
- opportunity to talk to someone in a private, comfortable quiet room
- over the phone information and support for those not able to access the service in person.

We also offer

- links to the clinical teams treating certain cancers
- links to local and national support services
- signpost people to self help and support groups
- liaise with other voluntary and statutory agencies
- cancer awareness educational stand
- access to benefits advice
- regular health and wellbeing events
- six week HOPE self management course.
