Subject: Point of care test in A+E

REQUEST

My enquiry is what point of care test is used in your trust to measure troponin in patients with suspected acute coronary syndrome? Primarily whether you use a point of care test in A+E and what point of care test is used, such as if it is a high sensitivity troponin or one of the earlier points of care assays.

RESPONSE

The Trust does not have point of care testing in place to measure Troponin levels. Samples are sent to the lab.
